

During the 1950s the governments of countries in the periphery of the so-called “Free World”, either democratic or authoritarian, set as a priority the “modernization” of their societies since underdevelopment was considered as a source of social and political instability. In this context migration policies that promoted either emigration or immigration became important part of the development strategies in sending and receiving countries respectively. The huge and under populated South American developing countries such as Brazil and Argentina looked at skilled European immigrants as a solution to their deficiencies in qualified human resources whereas overpopulated Southern European countries tried to get rid of their population “surplus” which was considered as a main factor for high unemployment, poverty and underdevelopment. The conference aims at problematizing the connection between migration policies and strategies of development in the periphery of the “Western World” in the early post-WWII period.

Conference organization: Maria Damilakou and Yannis G.S. Papadopoulos

Registration link:

https://us02web.zoom.us/webinar/register/WN\_kEVmDfE3RwCJ2KdJMMKtOA

Funded by the General Secretariat for Research and Innovation (GSRI)
and the Hellenic Foundation for Research and Innovation (HFRI)

Hosted by the Institute of Mediterranean Studies (IMS-FORTH)

Migration and Development in Southern Europe and South America in the post-World War II period

Conference Programme

Friday, February 25, 2022 (17:00 to 19:30 GMT+2)

- 17:00–17:15 Welcome by Prof. Gelina Harlaftis, Director of IMS 10.00–10:30
- 17:15–18:15 Panel 1: Development and migration policies in the periphery of the Western world / Part I
(Moderator: Yannis G.S. Papadopoulos)
- Giota Tourgeli (Panteion University): Migration policies and development doctrine in Greece
Sara Bernard (University of Glasgow) / Agustin Cosovschi (École Européenne de Sciences Politiques et Sociales/Lille): Cooperation, migration and development: Yugoslavia and the Southern Cone in the postwar period
Maria Damilakou (Ionian University): The migration-development nexus in Argentina's post-World War II policies
Discussion
- 18:30–19:30 Panel 2: Development and migration policies in the periphery of the Western world/ Part II: The case of Brazil.
(Moderator: Maria Damilakou)
- Roberto Goulart Menezes / Ana Tereza Reis da Silva (University of Brasília): Brazil: development and immigration in the “long exceptional period” (1929–1979)
Yannis G. S. Papadopoulos (University of Brasília): Skills, genes and politics: creating a profile for desirable immigrants in Brazil
Tânia Tonhati (University of Brasília) / Marcio de Oliveira (Federal University of Paraná) / Leonardo Cavalcanti (University of Brasília): The role of sociology in the interpretation of migration to Brazil and its national impact in the postwar period
Discussion

Saturday, February 26, 2022 (15:00 to 18:30 GMT+2)

- 15:00–15:30 Panel 3: Migration flows from South to South: transnational impact and limits / Part I
(Moderator: Ioannis Limnios-Sekeris)
- Beatriz Padilla (University of South Florida) / Thais França (Lisbon University Institute): Portuguese migrations to South America after World War II: extending citizenship abroad
María José Fernández Vicente (Université de Bretagne Occidentale): A stream of currency: the role of Spanish emigration in Franco's development strategy
- 15:30–16:30 Panel 3: Migration flows from South to South: transnational impact and limits / Part II
(Moderator: Ada Papazoglou)
- Maria Damilakou (Ionian University) / Yannis G. S. Papadopoulos (University of Brasília): Ambitious plans with modest results: Greek migration flows to Brazil and Argentina in the 1950s and 1960s
Ioannis Limnios-Sekeris (Panteion University): Migration as a business: organizing the transport of migrants from South to South
Antonis Masonidis (Ionian University): Migration flows from Southern Europe to South America: statistical data and analysis
- 17:00–17:30 Concluding Remarks: Maria Damilakou – Yannis G.S. Papadopoulos
- 17.30–18:30 General Discussion